Clover Welcomes Sandy Colvin as Chief Advancement Officer

Clover, formerly known as Kingsley House, has named Sandy Colvin as its Chief Advancement Officer. In this role, Sandy is responsible for the Advancement Office's strategic planning, major gift development, fundraising, volunteer cultivation, communications, and marketing.

"With a winning combination of talent, passion and purpose, we are profoundly honored to have Sandy lead the Advancement Office as we embark on our 126th year of service. We are confident her experience will bring strong results for the agency," said Keith Liederman, Ph.D., Chief Executive Officer of Clover.

Prior to Clover, Sandy was the Chief Development Officer of the Greater Baton Rouge Food Bank and responsible for its comprehensive planning, implementation, management and oversight of all fundraising, communications and community relations activities. In that role, Sandy raised more than $2 million in major gifts and planned giving pledges in 2022.

Before that, Sandy served as the Director of Development for the LSU Foundation and the Head of School/Co-Founder of St. Lillian Academy in Baton Rouge.

A graduate of LSU with a Bachelor of Science in Education, Sandy is excited to return to New Orleans after almost two decades in Baton Rouge. "I am thrilled to begin this new chapter and ready to advocate for Clover's mission of educating children, strengthening families, and building community...all in the city that I love and call home," said Sandy.

About Clover

Founded in 1896 with a mission to educate children, strengthen families and build community, Clover (formerly known as Kingsley House) envisions a city and region where all young children are ready to succeed, and all citizens are healthy and economically stable. Recognizing that under-served families are at risk of being caught in an intractable cycle of poverty, the organization is committed to ensuring that individuals and families have the support necessary to be successful at all stages of life.

To accomplish its goals, the historic nonprofit joins forces with dedicated community partners to collectively work with families to fuel economic growth and social change in our city, state, and region. For more about Clover's mission and how to get involved, visit www.clovernola.org.
